Laces, handkerchiefs, neckwear, gloves and hosiery. If you see these goods you will buy, for they are the newest things out this season. And as to the prices, you know how they are yourself.

D. H. DOUGHERTY
My goods are fine, but prices low. Now, don't buy of others and pay them more and think the goods finer because the price is higher, for I tell you that the price does not always govern the quality.

D. H. DOUGHERTY
My goods and prices tell the whole story. You may buy ten dollars' worth of goods from any house in Atlanta, and then call on me and I will convince you that you can save one dollar by buying the same amount from me. This is simple business, and a dollar is not picked up in a cow track.

I am sorry that I have not time to give you an inventory of my stock, but I will take time to tell you that I have got anything that you may need, and am selling many lines of goods less than you can buy elsewhere.

A SHOWING FOR THE CENTRAL CITY

Which Challenges the Admiration of Every Georgian.

$750,000 IN BUILDINGS GOING UP.

A Boom in all Branches Which Helps the State and Helps the South.

EVERYBODY PULLING TOGETHER.

MACON, Ga., April 29.—Of all the southern cities of any special prominence or commercial standing, not one, in my opinion, is more rapidly advancing than Macon. I have been here a week, and after a careful survey of the situation, I have come to the conclusion that the city shows up a better record than I thought her capable of proving. When the war closed the population was scarcely above four or five thousand, though previous to that eventful period she reckoned even a greater number of inhabitants than that.

THE POPULATION. To-day the actual population of Macon proper, taking in Vineville and East Macon, both of which are legitimate suburbs of the city and I find 21,000 to be the accurate number of inhabitants of the central city. I cannot see why there should be an dividing line between Macon and Vineville, as it is nothing more nor less than a continuation of the streets and houses of the former. Vineville alone has a population of 5,000, while East Macon has about 3,000 or 4,000, making the last census returns of Macon, 12,000, about correct, with a proper increase of a little over twelve per cent since then. There is every evidence that the city is rapidly filling up with people and the present decade will show far more fully as large a per cent of increase as any city in the entire south. This has always been a substantial place, but since the war, somehow, the people have not been thoroughly imbued with the spirit of progress, and consequently the city has lacked that power to throw her forward which has characterized the wonderful rise of Atlanta.

A NEW ERA. But to-day a change has come over the entire city. I have seen everywhere what has been shown me, and if a single city in the south can make a similar display of such solid improvements then I cannot point it out. A feeling of rivalry has taken possession of moneyed men, and on every street handsome structures are going up on every side. I took a drive out to Vineville yesterday through the country, and saw everywhere, passing along College street, past the new structure of St. Paul's Episcopal church now in process of building, Colonel Hines said, pointing to the new residence of Mr. Hines, "There are ten handsome new residences going up on those adjoining squares." I looked, and could see for myself, the hammering of the busy mason, and the ringing of the trowel made a chime of music that made prosperity for Macon and new life to Georgia. THREE QUARTERS OF THE CITY. To give an idea of some of the details of the work now going on, I am enabled through the courtesy of Mr. Henry Horne, a prominent young real estate agent, and whose opinion is looked up to with confidence and esteem by all of Macon, to present a detailed statement of some of the hard licks now going on here. The following appeared in the Telegraph and Messenger a few days ago from Mr. Horne:

It was my pleasure some weeks ago to place before our citizens an account of the improvements in the Telegraph and Messenger, my views on real estate matters. It was not my object to overstate the situation, and I did not say more than that, from the amount of improvement in the course of my remarks it was stated that $300,000 would be expended in general improvements. This statement furnished to some of our noted contractors an amount of amusement in the way of comment. Doubtless to them it seemed impossible and astounding. Now I propose to frighten them.

In presenting to you people the happy results of what is under way and what is contemplated in real estate improvements, I do so with a feeling of pride. I am not only able to account for my former estimate of $300,000, but to show a grand total of $500,000, including the improvements, the depots and shops, and the Macon and Brunswick railroad company and three stock manufacturing enterprises assured of success.

Nothing will be found in the list but that which belongs strictly to buildings. Departing from them, I mention the improvements in the various other improvements, making a grand total of $600,000. The volume is so large I have thought it best to make mention of no building improvements less than $500, or to mention the various changes of buildings already erected. I desire to add that I feel confident my list does not cover a complete summary. I have relied simply on my own information, not having had the time to get a complete list from our architects and builders. The whole forms a grand showing, not, however, colored with anything, but facts. If there are any doubting ones, a call on me will convince them fully. I have refrained from mentioning, by request, many new dwellings for which lots have been purchased through me, as the parties contemplate partners, of which events the public will be informed in due course of time.

My position as in the past two years remains the same, firm and solid. Convinced that a bright future is before us, that pluck and energy must seize upon our people, that we possess to carry Macon forward to what she is destined to be—the great city of Georgia.

In me, despite what may be the opinion of even a number of our people, uniformly remains the same, firm and solid. Convinced that a bright future is before us, that pluck and energy must seize upon our people, that we possess to carry Macon forward to what she is destined to be—the great city of Georgia.

In addition to this remarkable exhibit which I was discussing this morning with Mr. Horne, I have seen everywhere that there are fully $150,000 in buildings now under contract not included in the list, which will swell the grand total of Macon's present building boom to three quarters of a million. I doubt if Atlanta will show so great a record for the entire year.

THE TRADE OF MACON. Everybody I have met here seemed to be inebriated with the same feeling of enterprise. It has become a contagion and is fast breaking out along the line. In every corner of the city but one voice: "Yes, Macon is awakening from her long sleep." There are many who will continue to abuse their own heartbeats, and the solid or the present boom is too great to be laughed at or cried down.

THE TRADE OF MACON. Before going into a detailed mention of some of the leading enterprises of Macon, I desire to say a word about the trade of the city. The business here is simply enormous and compares favorably with any other southern city. Indeed, in one branch of trade, Macon has very readily distinguished itself from Atlanta, while she can walk right away from Savannah in other things. The biggest single volume of business is the grocery trade, which is estimated to be about $1,000,000 annually. The dry goods trade is about $3,500,000, while the hardware and machinery foot up considerably over $3,000,000. Of course these are only figures from the estimates that the retail dry goods trade amounts to $1,225,000, one house, J. H. and Co., the largest south of Philadelphia, selling one-fifth of this amount.

Macon has twelve handsome church edifices for whites and nearly the same number for blacks. There are seven banks with a capital of over $1,000,000, gas and water works.

As an ornament, as well as an honor, to Macon, they were erected last year, and cost about $75,000. The people here think they have the finest system of water-works in the south, and certainly the purest water. I do not doubt either statement. The supply comes from a bold spring on the edge of town which yields every day 150,000 gallons of as pure, sweet water, as was ever pumped up by an engine. A beautiful reservoir, over 150 feet above the city, holding about 2,500,000 gallons, stands on a ridge a mile from the business center. From this fountain head the mains run down into the city, supplying the houses and connected with about seven miles of pipe.

present not one-fourth of the supply is used daily, so that the works will not until Macon has reached fully 100,000 inhabitants or more. I was told that the reservoir was owned by George Ober, Jr., and I know a finer one was never constructed. It is about 300 feet long by 100 feet wide, and holds 26 feet of water. It is situated on a high ridge, and is not a single brick was used in its construction, the builders preferring to put the cement right on the soil. The water in the reservoir is as clear as crystal, and in some places reaches the people, no mud ever being seen in it. Indeed, I consider the Macon water works a monument to the projectors and a lasting credit to the city.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS. Macon has long been enjoying a system of public schools, and they are considered as fine as any in the country. They are the pride of the entire city, and have been the means of bringing in a great many people as permanent residents. There are a number of very handsome buildings used by the free schools, while the corps of teachers is as good as could be procured.

THE BUSINESS ACADEMY. This is one of the leading institutions of the state, and is in a flourishing condition. The building is situated on an eminence overlooking the city, and is surrounded by beautiful grounds, with a fine lawn, and a large number of green and lovely lawns. The present building is used entirely by whites, but at the last session of the legislature $10,000 were appropriated to build a new building for the colored blind in another part of the city. The corner-stone was laid this week with imposing ceremonies by the colored people, a number of representative men of that race being present from different parts of the state. The colored military of the city were out and headed by a brass band and a great many secret orders, they marched through the streets a procession a half a mile long.

CENTRAL CITY PARK. By nearly every one who has seen this truly beautiful park, it is considered one of the handsomest in America. Indeed, I doubt if the entire union can produce a spot by nature as thoroughly adapted and as lovely every way as this Central City Park. It was first commenced some eight or nine years ago, and has cost, all told, somewhere in the neighborhood of $300,000. Hon. W. A. Huff first projected the building of the park, and it was commenced and supervised by his personal guidance and supervision. The park is situated just in front of the city hall, and is a beautiful and grand old park. Altogether, I think there are about one hundred and fifty acres in the reserve, every inch of which is beautiful and well adapted for the purpose. The park is a full mile in length, is considered undoubtedly the finest in the United States, every movement of a horse the whole distance around the park is a pleasure. In addition to this remarkable exhibit which I was discussing this morning with Mr. Horne, I have seen everywhere that there are fully $150,000 in buildings now under contract not included in the list, which will swell the grand total of Macon's present building boom to three quarters of a million. I doubt if Atlanta will show so great a record for the entire year.

THE TRADE OF MACON. Everybody I have met here seemed to be inebriated with the same feeling of enterprise. It has become a contagion and is fast breaking out along the line. In every corner of the city but one voice: "Yes, Macon is awakening from her long sleep." There are many who will continue to abuse their own heartbeats, and the solid or the present boom is too great to be laughed at or cried down.

THE TRADE OF MACON. Before going into a detailed mention of some of the leading enterprises of Macon, I desire to say a word about the trade of the city. The business here is simply enormous and compares favorably with any other southern city. Indeed, in one branch of trade, Macon has very readily distinguished itself from Atlanta, while she can walk right away from Savannah in other things. The biggest single volume of business is the grocery trade, which is estimated to be about $1,000,000 annually. The dry goods trade is about $3,500,000, while the hardware and machinery foot up considerably over $3,000,000. Of course these are only figures from the estimates that the retail dry goods trade amounts to $1,225,000, one house, J. H. and Co., the largest south of Philadelphia, selling one-fifth of this amount.

Macon has twelve handsome church edifices for whites and nearly the same number for blacks. There are seven banks with a capital of over $1,000,000, gas and water works.

As an ornament, as well as an honor, to Macon, they were erected last year, and cost about $75,000. The people here think they have the finest system of water-works in the south, and certainly the purest water. I do not doubt either statement. The supply comes from a bold spring on the edge of town which yields every day 150,000 gallons of as pure, sweet water, as was ever pumped up by an engine. A beautiful reservoir, over 150 feet above the city, holding about 2,500,000 gallons, stands on a ridge a mile from the business center. From this fountain head the mains run down into the city, supplying the houses and connected with about seven miles of pipe.

present not one-fourth of the supply is used daily, so that the works will not until Macon has reached fully 100,000 inhabitants or more. I was told that the reservoir was owned by George Ober, Jr., and I know a finer one was never constructed. It is about 300 feet long by 100 feet wide, and holds 26 feet of water. It is situated on a high ridge, and is not a single brick was used in its construction, the builders preferring to put the cement right on the soil. The water in the reservoir is as clear as crystal, and in some places reaches the people, no mud ever being seen in it. Indeed, I consider the Macon water works a monument to the projectors and a lasting credit to the city.

We also sell goods in Alabama and Florida.

"How many men do you have in your employ here?"

"In all, about thirty besides the partners in the business. We buy our domestics from Georgia and North Carolina mills. I find little difference in the quality of southern cotton cloth, but the cotton from the latter portion from Georgia. I don't know why, but no southern mills have yet attempted to make bleached goods or prints. This they ought to do, and I see no reason why they should not. The Columbus mills probably make the finest variety of fine cotton goods of any mill south, but they still lack facilities for bleaching and printing."

"What do you think of Macon's future?"

"Macon has been comparatively asleep for a number of years, but I am satisfied she is beginning to awake. We feel every confidence in her success, and are going to show our faith in our words by opening one of the largest and most extensive retail stores in the south."

"Where will it be situated?"

"Just where Julian is now—or rather part of that block where the bank is. We intend to rank second to none in that line. It is an essential to our present business, and will enable us to keep a finer line of goods for the trade of Macon than we can afford to do now." Leaving Coleman's I drifted down Third street almost to the extreme end of it, and an abstract of the large buildings covering a whole square of three acres occupied by the Findlay iron works.

The Findlay iron works are long associated with the history and interests of Macon. The present extensive iron works were established by the Findlay family, and are now owned by them. The entire family are thoroughly identified with Georgia and her future development, and all of them are engaged in the iron business. The Findlay family, who were the first to establish the iron works, were the first to establish the iron works, and are now the first to establish the iron works.

"What do you make?" I asked Mr. Findlay, who had shown me through his entire establishment.

"Just anything that can be made out of iron from a horseshoe nail up to steam engines. Our principal business, though, is in engines, cotton presses and saw mills. We do a large amount of railroad work by contract."

Just here two large locomotive drivers were driven up from the Brunswick shops to be overhauled, cutting down the time of the solid steel about an inch. It will take ten days' hard work to finish them.

"How many hands do you employ?"

"About sixty, though we are often compelled to use more than these. We sell our goods all over the south and not long ago I received an order for an engine."

In the Pacific ocean. We filled the order and sent the work on its way rejoicing.

"How much iron do you use in a year?"

"Near 2,000 tons, and we use about 600 tons. We use from 500 to 600 tons of pig iron besides about half as much scrap iron. Our business will amount to about $150,000 per year."

On this we were told a good profit, and of course. We make a specialty of our own cotton presses, invented by ourselves. Right over there from where we stand is the largest iron planing machine in the south. It will plane a piece of iron forty feet long."

"What will the new building cost?" I asked Mr. Thompson.

"About $50,000. It will be one of the most complete buildings of the kind ever erected in the state, and will be a very sufficient for even a larger business than we are now doing. But you know we believe in Macon's growth, and consequently expect our trade to increase with the city."

"What stock do you carry?"

"That is hard to estimate. We vary from $150,000 to $400,000, and sometimes go as high as $500,000. There are few houses south that do a heavier business than we do. We sell in notions alone fully $150,000 annually. We very often carry the entire production of a whole cotton mill. Last year we took the Hamilton mill's entire product, making at one time a bill of $25,000 for domestics alone."

"How many men do you employ?"

"We keep three or four on the road, and have about twenty at home. We do a safe business and discount every bill that comes into the house."

Gents: I have suffered from Scrofula for about 17 years. The disease being mostly confined to my legs and ankles, my skin bones were covered with LARGE ULCERS AND ONE MASS OF ROTTEN FLESH, AND THE ODOR ALMOST UNBEARABLE. All remedies and treatments which I tried failed to do me any good. When at last I began taking S. S. S., continuing for about four months, I AM CERTAINLY WELL. I took S. S. S. under the supervision of a physician of 24 years active practice, by your order. Previously to taking S. S. S. I at times could scarcely walk about. NOW I CAN WALK ALL DAY, AND I HAVE TO THANK S. ATLANTA, March 15, 1882.
SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY—
I feel it a duty I owe to you and suffering humanity to add my testimony to the merits of S. S. S. and cheerfully certify to the following facts and would that all who are suffering from that MOST LOATHSOME DISEASE could know what it has accomplished for me:

After suffering from Syphilis for more than a year being treated by several eminent physicians, who all used the usual remedies of the profession—MERCURY, IODIDE OF POTASH, with no perceptible change for the better—confined to my ROOM and bed the greater part of the time—my body covered with copper-colored sores from the size of a pea to that of a silver half dollar—the disease reached what is known as the second stage, leaving me well nigh in despair. Finally, I commenced taking S. S. S. under the advice and supervision of a first-class physician. In a short time I began to improve in flesh and all the sores healed and I could feel and know that I was well and to S. S. S. must the credit be given of my entire restoration to health. I have not taken a dose for more than six months and am as free from sores or blemish as any one and feel that I have a new lease on life. Respectfully,
LOTTIE ROSS.

The above cases were treated under the supervision of one of our best physicians. If any who are interested will call at LAMAR, RANKIN & LAMAR'S they can learn full particulars.

Will you hesitate to take S. S. S. for SCROFULA, CATARRH, ECZEMA or any disease originating from a disordered condition of the Blood, when proof conclusive is given that it thoroughly removes all taint of
